Betsey & Andrew

LOVE

In front of 270 of their closest family and friends, this bride and groom become the first couple to say “I do” at the new Four Seasons Hotel Philadelphia.

FROM THE MOMENT they got engaged, Betsey Margolies and Andrew Siegel had their hearts set on one very special wedding venue. The Four Seasons Hotel Philadelphia at Comcast Center not only offered a beautiful, brand-new setting that none of their guests had experienced before, but it held sentimental value too: The bride’s parents tied the knot at the hotel’s original location 34 years prior.

They booked the space sight unseen and put faith in Brian Kappra and the Evantine Design team to work their magic with the decor. “I had always dreamed of a white wedding, but considering I had been to so many, I wanted to change it up,” says the bride. The result was a perfect mix of classic and colorful; the ceremony was a sea of ivory peonies, orchids and garden roses, while the reception glistened with vibrant jewel tones. The couple caught a glimpse of the ballroom before their guests arrived and were completely blown away. “We couldn’t wait to officially get the party started!” ■

Clockwise from top left: Evantine designed a classic white setting for the couple’s traditional Jewish ceremony; the view of the city from the Four Seasons Hotel; the bride and groom’s rings from Hamilton Jewelers where the groom is the fourth-generation owner; an elegant bridal bouquet by Evantine Design; the reception stunned guests with vibrant jewel tones.
