

LOVE IN THE AIR

With their original party plans on hold due to the pandemic, this local couple made the quick decision to host an intimate ceremony at the Loews Philadelphia Hotel.

DESPITE THE COUNTLESS hours they spend in the sky, neither France Anderson, a flight attendant, nor Melvin Jefferson, a pilot, expected to find love at 30,000 feet. All that changed in May 2018, when they serendipitously crossed paths on Delta Flight 1601.

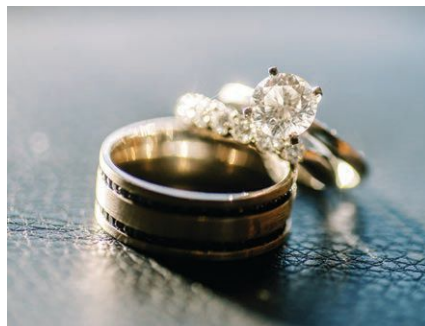

Melvin, a Philadelphia native, was traveling off-duty when he accidentally spilled a drink—leading to a chance encounter with the “kind, helpful” flight attendant on board. Before deplaning, he passed along a note asking her out for coffee. “I never entertained such offers,” France says, “but my intuition told me to give him a chance.” They were engaged 10 months later.

The pandemic put a pause on the couple’s plan for a 230-person celebration at Cairnwood Estate (they’ve rescheduled for this coming September)—but it didn’t stop them from officially getting hitched. With just 45 days’ notice, France and Melvin gathered their families and bridal party for a microwedding at the Loews Philadelphia Hotel. “Our day truly could not have been more special.” ■
